IV. Advisory Business

The Firm

Sterneck Capital Management, LLC (hereinafter “SCM” the “Investment Manager” or “Advisor”) has been in business since 1989 and is entirely owned by Frank Sterneck. SCM offers wealth management services and investment advice relative to the purchase and sale of securities in the management of investment portfolios.

SCM provides advisory services for individual and joint accounts, trusts, IRAs, 401Ks, 529s foundations and GRATs. SCM also provides fiduciary advisory services to retirement plan sponsors. In addition to investment advisory services, SCM may provide financial planning services to clients.

Investment Management Services

We manage advisory accounts on a discretionary basis. For discretionary accounts, once we have determined a profile and investment plan with a client, we will execute the day to day transactions without seeking prior client consent. Account supervision is guided by the written profile and investment plan of the client. We may accept accounts with certain restrictions if circumstances warrant. We primarily allocate client assets among various equities, Exchanged Traded Funds (“ETFs”), mutual funds, debt securities and private investments in accordance with their stated investment objectives.

During personal discussions with clients, we determine the client’s objectives, time horizons, risk tolerance and liquidity needs. As appropriate, we also review a client’s prior investment history, as well as family composition and background. Based on client needs, we develop a client’s personal profile and investment plan. We then create and manage the client’s investments based on that policy and plan. It is the client’s obligation to notify us immediately if circumstances have changed with respect to their goals.

Once we have determined the types of investments to be included in your portfolio and allocated them, we will provide ongoing investment review and management services. This approach requires us to periodically review your portfolio.

With our discretionary relationship, we will make changes to the portfolio, as we deem appropriate, to meet your financial objectives. We trade these portfolios based on the combination of our market views and your objectives, using our investment process. We tailor our advisory services to meet the needs of our clients and seek to ensure that your portfolio is managed in a manner consistent with those needs and objectives. You will have the ability to leave standing instructions with us to refrain from investing in particular industries or invest in limited amounts of securities.

We do have limited authority to direct the Custodian to deduct our investment advisory fees from your accounts, but only with the appropriate written authorization from you.

Where appropriate, we provide advice on any type of legacy position held in client portfolios. Typically, these are assets that are ineligible to be custodied at our primary custodian. Clients will engage us to advise on certain investment products that are not maintained at their primary custodian, such as annuity contracts and assets held in employer sponsored retirement plans and qualified tuition plans (i.e., 529 plans).

You are advised and are expected to understand that our past performance is not a guarantee of future results. Certain market and economic risks exist that adversely affect an account's performance. This could result in capital losses in your account.

Financial Planning

Financial planning is a service that may be offered to clients. There is no incremental fee for this service for clients with assets under management. An incremental financial planning fee may be charged for households that do not have assets under management.

Financial advisory services provided by SCM may include the analysis of a client's situation and assistance in identifying and implementing appropriate financial planning and investment management techniques to help clients meet their specific financial objectives. Such services may include a written financial analysis and specific or general investment and/or planning recommendations.

When preparing a financial plan, SCM may address any or all six areas of financial planning established by the National Endowment for Financial Education and endorsed by the Certified Financial Planner Board of Standards, depending on a client's specific needs. These include: financial position, protection planning, investment planning, income tax planning, retirement planning, and estate planning.

SCM specific services in preparing a plan may include:

- Determining appropriate income planning strategies for both pre- and post-retirement;
- Reviewing existing and proposed investment asset mixes to help a client meet their financial objectives. This would include reviewing risk/return issues and a suggested plan of action consistent with a client's risk tolerance and overall financial objectives.
- Calculating a client's pre-retirement savings and investing needs;
- Assessing a client's overall financial position including net worth, cash flow, and debt;

- Proving a comprehensive analysis of IRA-related issues including rollover, distribution, and inheritance planning options;
- Evaluating strategies designed to maximize the utilization and protection of IRA assets;
- Estimating federal estate taxes and suggesting a plan of action to help meet estate planning objectives. This is not to be a substitute for professional tax advice from a qualified tax professional.
- Reviewing and determining life and disability insurance needs;
- Providing suggestions for minimizing federal and state income tax obligations; and
- Developing investment strategies consistent with business ownership secession and transition planning, if applicable.

Retirement Plan Advisory

The Retirement Plan Advisory Service is offered to retirement plan sponsors and is generally charged an asset-based management fee which is negotiable based on the scope of service.

The Retirement Plan Advisory Services offered by SCM consists of assuming fiduciary responsibility from the employer plan sponsors as SCM establishes, monitors and reviews a company's participant-directed retirement plan. As the needs of the plan sponsor dictate, areas of advising can include: third-party administrator and record keeper selection, plan structure, investment options, and participant education.

SCM will establish a plan sponsor's needs and objectives through an initial meeting to collect data, review plan information, and assist in developing or updating the plan's provisions. Ongoing services may include selection and review of unaffiliated mutual funds that, in SCM's judgment, are suitable for plan assets to be invested. SCM periodically reviews the investment options to determine whether to keep or replace plan investment options as appropriate. SCM performs a comprehensive review of potential service providers or vendors and will assist with converting the plan from the incumbent service provider to a new administrator and record keeper, as applicable.

Services available under an Investment Advisory Agreement permit SCM to provide financial education to the plan participants. The scope of education provided to participants and delivery method is agreed upon but will not constitute "investment advice" within the meaning of ERISA. Participant education will relate to general principles for investing and information about the investment options currently in the plan. SCM may also participate in initial enrollment meetings and periodic workshops and enrollment meetings for new participants, as agreed upon.

Tailored Service

Prior to initiating an investment program, Sterneck Capital Management, LLC attempts to learn each client's total net worth, liquid net worth, marital status, current income, income needs, investment experience, investment time horizon, financial goals and objectives and willingness and ability to tolerate risk (generally regarded as price volatility and probabilities of negative outcomes). Clients specify securities or asset classes they do not want to own.

Within this strategic framework, a target asset allocation will be established. Once agreed upon, Sterneck Capital will begin the tactical implementation by using a value-oriented investment style to identify appropriate mutual funds, ETFs and/or investment securities the firm is willing to buy and sell. This value focus transcends size, sector and capital structure. It is an effort focused on identifying securities where risk-adjusted returns appear favorable in an absolute sense and/or relative to historic metrics.

With proper agreements in place between SCM and a client, and the brokerage firm and a client, SCM has full authority in its discretion to purchase, sell, tender, exchange, convert or exercise and otherwise acquire or dispose of, and trade and deal in or with, securities.

V. Fees and Compensation

Description

SCM is compensated for advisory services through asset-based management fees and flat-fee rates. Annual asset-based fees range from 0.40% to 1.50%, with a 1.25% management fee being most typical.

Management fees are subject to negotiation. The management fee outlined in each client's Management Agreement is largely a factor of the value of household's assets under management, investment mandate, and continuity of former fee arrangements. In cases where a purchase agreement with another Investment Advisor resulted in the transition of client relationships to Sterneck Capital Management, the clients' management fee did not change. In some cases, this results in clients paying fees at the high end of the management fee scale, but not greater than 1.50%.

Certain consulting arrangements are performed on a flat-fee basis, with fees commensurate to the agreed upon scope of service. The negotiated fixed rate for creating a financial plan for a non-client (person without assets under management) could range between $250 and $2,500. Fees are charged in arrears upon completion. The final negotiated rate depends upon a number of factors including, the type and value of assets being addressed in the plan, the number of different individuals being considered (e.g., multiple family members), the plan's complexity, the amount of time it takes to prepare and refine the plan, and any deadlines or time sensitive components for the plan's completion.

Fees charged to clients may be higher or lower than the aforementioned fees depending on the nature of any preexisting relationship, the complexity of the accounts, or terms and conditions of any outstanding or pre-existing verbal or written agreement to which SCM is a party.

Billing Method

Each client has a choice whether to pay their management fees via check or have it deducted directly from the account. Clients are billed quarterly a percentage of the gross assets of the account at the end of each fiscal quarter, adjusted for contributions and withdrawals made during the quarter. Fees may be assessed on all assets under management, including securities, cash and money market balances. Regarding the application of management fees, margin debit balances do not reduce the value of assets under management. Such fees are payable following the end of each fiscal quarter and shall be prorated for periods less than a full calendar quarter.

Other Fees

Clients may experience other indirect fees such as:

Transaction fees – Prime Brokers charge a transaction fee for processing the purchase or sale of a security in the client account. The fee will vary based on the security type being transacted.

Mutual fund management fees – SCM may invest client portfolio assets in mutual funds or exchange traded funds (“ETFs”). Mutual funds and ETFs have certain underlying expenses, detailed in the prospectuses provided to clients, borne indirectly by their owners. To the extent that SCM charges a direct fee to the portfolio (or its owner), such a fee is in addition to the indirect cost of owning a mutual fund and/or ETF.

Executing Broker commission (equity)—For equity transactions effected through Executing Brokers, client accounts typically pay $.05 per share plus a transaction fee to the Prime Broker. For transactions effected at the Prime Broker, client accounts also pay the transaction fee then current at their Prime Broker.

Executing broker commission (bonds)—For bond transactions effected through Executing Brokers, the security price offered by the Executing Broker includes a commission payable to the broker. For transactions effected at the Prime Broker, client accounts also pay the transaction fee then current at their Prime Broker

SCM receives no form of compensation other than the management fee outlined in each client’s management agreement. SCM has no vested interest in any of these other fees, other than taking advantage of research and access to securities for the benefit of client portfolios. All fees outlined above have adverse impacts on performance, thus SCM’s interest is to ensure a fee is commensurate with the value being provided. All broker-dealers selected by SCM to act as either Prime Broker or Executing Broker for its clients’ accounts are unaffiliated third parties.

Feeds Paid In Advance

Individually managed accounts pay their management fee in arrears, based on the value of the assets at the end of the quarter.

Sales Commission

SCM receives no form of compensation resembling a sales commission.

VI. Performance Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

SMC does not receive performance-based fees.

VII. Types of Clients

The types of clients SCM generally provides advice to are individuals, trustees, charitable organizations, corporations and plan sponsors. There is no stated minimum account size.

VIII. Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Account Management

SCM defines itself as a multi-cap, value manager with a broad expertise in the equity, fixed – income , options and alternative markets. The firm relies on fundamental analysis and to a lesser extent quantitative analysis, believing fundamentally sound companies are good to own, but should be purchased at the right price. Generally, SCM operates with a long-term focus and often buys on weakness and sells on strength.

Sterneck Capital has defined a security selection process managed by the SCM Investment Committee. The output of the selection process is specific buy/sell/hold decisions. The inputs for the process are the varying sources of information and tools used by the Investment Committee in making their buy/sell/hold decisions. These sources of information are equity screens, industry journals/periodicals, SCM independent research, sales brokers, watch lists, and technical analysis.

SCM applies a value-focus when evaluating the merits of individual securities and ideas. The committee typically focuses on identifying securities and sectors believed to be temporarily mispriced. Often, this leads the committee to out-of-favor asset classes and industry sectors. Likewise, in a euphoric phase of a market cycle, SCM maintains a focus on realistic security valuations.

This contrarian approach requires independent thinking. The committee has the freedom to construct portfolios designed to realize clients' articulated goals while attempting to reduce portfolio risk.

Investing in securities carries an inherent risk of loss investors must be prepared to bear. The committee recognizes diversification and discipline are two keys to successful portfolio design that can dampen risk to the portfolio. Diversification is a tool rooted in humility, knowing future market events are unpredictable, SCM prudently diversifies across and within asset classes, so no single security selection or holding determines success or failure. Diversification is also achieved thru low or non-correlated alternatives, which typically perform independent of traditional asset classes. Discipline prompts the committee's continuous and dispassionate reexamination of prior investment decisions in the light of additional information.

Sterneck Capital may use margin in client accounts, as a tool to help cover short-term cash needs. Generally, use of significant or long-term margin is done at the specific request of the client.

Security Types

Within the broad equity and fixed income asset classes, SCM has many tools from which to choose. Each security type listed below has associated risk and return characteristics. Each is weighed by Sterneck Capital when constructing and managing a diversified portfolio designed to realize a client's articulated goals while reducing portfolio risk across and within traditional and non-traditional asset classes.

The types of securities frequently considered by Sterneck Capital:

Equity Oriented	Fixed Income Oriented
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Common Stock • Preferred Stock • Master Limited Partnerships (MLPs) • Real Estate Investment Trusts (REITs) • Open-Ended Mutual Funds • Closed-Ended Mutual Funds • Interval Based Mutual Funds • Exchange Traded Funds (ETFs) • Call/Put Options • Private Placements 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Corporate Bonds • Municipal Bonds • Agency Bonds • Mortgage-Backed Notes • Index-Linked Notes

Securities listed may not be appropriate for all clients*

Material Risks

Sterneck Capital Management believes diversification is a key to dampening risk (volatility) within a portfolio. Portfolios are created based on the individual needs and circumstances of the client and will hold a broad array of individual securities and/or mutual funds, at the discretion of the portfolio manager, to satisfy those needs.

Past performance is not indicative of future results. Therefore, a client should never assume future performance of any specific investment or investment strategy will be profitable. Investing in securities (including stocks, mutual funds, and bonds, etc.) involves risk of loss. Further, depending on the diverse types of investments there may be varying degrees of risk. Clients should be prepared to bear investment loss including loss of original principal.

Because of the inherent risk of loss associated with investing, our firm is unable to represent, guarantee, or even imply that our services and methods of analysis can or will predict future results, successfully identify market tops or bottoms, or insulate clients from losses due to market corrections or declines. There are certain additional risks associated with investing in securities through our investment management program, as described below:

- Interest-rate Risk: Fluctuations in interest rates may cause investment prices to fluctuate. For example, when interest rates rise, yields on existing bonds become less attractive, causing their market values to decline.
- Market Risk: Either the stock market as a whole, or the value of an individual company, goes down resulting in a decrease in the value of client investments. This is also referred to as systemic risk.
- Inflation Risk: When any type of inflation is present, a dollar today will not buy as much as a dollar next year because purchasing power is eroding at the rate of inflation.
- Currency Risk: Overseas investments are subject to fluctuations in the value of the dollar against the currency of the investment's originating country. This is also referred to as exchange rate risk.

- Reinvestment Risk: This is the risk that future proceeds from investments may have to be reinvested at a potentially lower rate of return (i.e., interest rate). This primarily relates to fixed income securities.
- Equity (stock) market risk: Common stocks are susceptible to general stock market fluctuations and to volatile increases and decreases in value as market confidence in and perceptions of their issuers change. If you held common stock, or common stock equivalents, of any given issuer, you would generally be exposed to greater risk than if you held preferred stocks and debt obligations of the issuer.
- Company Risk: When investing in stock positions, there is always a certain level of company or industry specific risk that is inherent in each investment. This is also referred to as unsystematic risk and can be reduced through appropriate diversification. There is the risk that the company will perform poorly or have its value reduced based on factors specific to the company or its industry. For example, if a company's employees go on strike or the company receives unfavorable media attention for its actions, the value of the company may be reduced.
- Fixed Income Risk: When investing in bonds, there is the risk that the issuer will default on the bond and be unable to make payments. Further, individuals who depend on set amounts of periodically paid income face the risk that inflation will erode their spending power. Fixed-income investors receive set, regular payments that face the same inflation risk.
- Options Risk: Options on securities may be subject to greater fluctuations in value than an investment in the underlying securities. Purchasing and writing put and call options on positions held (covered options) are highly specialized activities and entail greater than ordinary investment risks.
- Uncovered Option Risk: Uncovered writing of put and call options reflect unlimited liability as the potential for loss can exceed the premiums collected. Because options are inherently leveraged, modest price moves in the underlying security are magnified as a percentage impact on the option price. Significant loss potential exists.
- ETF and Mutual Fund Risk: When investing in an ETF or mutual fund, you will bear additional expenses based on your pro rata share of the ETF's or mutual fund's operating expenses, including the potential duplication of management fees. The risk of owning an ETF or mutual fund generally reflects the risks of owning the underlying securities the ETF or mutual fund holds. You will also incur brokerage costs when purchasing ETFs.
- Liquidity Risk: Liquidity is the ability to readily convert an investment into cash. Generally, assets are more liquid if there is a high interest in a standardized product. For example, Treasury Bills are highly liquid, while real estate properties are not.
- Financial Risk: The possibility that shareholders will lose money when they invest in a company that has debt if the company's cash flow proves inadequate to meet its financial obligations.

- Actuarial Risk: Actuarial tables reflect the probabilistic outcome in the future, based on analysis of what has occurred over a large sample size in the past. Actuarial tables can be used to set the price (or premiums) for certain investments.
- Underwriting Risk: Certain investments rely on the subjective and objective review of factors that comprise the risk associated with a specific investment decision. The underwriting analysis contributes to the purchase price or interest rate one is willing to offer when considering the investment.

The types of options strategies (buy-writes and covered calls) most commonly used by SCM represent strategies designed to dampen risk, though this activity does not result in hedged positions.

Security Risks

Real Estate Industry and REIT Risks: SCM may invest in companies in the real estate industry. Accordingly, SCM investments will be subject to the risks incident to ownership and development of real estate, including risks associated with changes in the general economic climate that create vacancies or put downward pressure on rental rates, changes in the overall real estate market, local real estate conditions, the financial condition of tenants, buyers and sellers of properties, supply of or demand for competing properties in an area, accelerated construction activity, technological innovations that dramatically alter space requirements, the availability of debt and other financing, changes in interest rates, competition based on rental rates, energy and supply shortages, various uninsured and uninsurable risks (including possible terrorist activity), and government regulations. Further, certain real estate investment trusts (“REITs”) have relatively small market capitalizations, which may tend to increase the volatility of the market price of securities issued by such REITs. REITs are dependent upon specialized management skills, have limited diversification and are, therefore, subject to risks inherent in operating and financing a limited number of projects. REITs depend generally on their ability to generate cash flow to make distributions to investors.

Real Estate-Related Debt Securities: SCM may invest a portion of their assets in real estate related debt securities. Investments in real estate-related debt securities will involve special risks relating to the particular issuer of the securities, including the financial condition, liquidity, results of operations, business and prospects of the issuer. Debt securities are often unsecured and may also be subordinated to other obligations of the issuer. These real estate-related debt securities may include instruments that are not rated or are rated non-investment grade by one or more rating agencies. Investments that are not rated or are rated non-investment grade have a higher risk of default than investment grade rated assets and therefore may result in losses. Investments in real estate-related debt securities will also involve risks relating to mortgage loans and mortgage-backed securities and similar risks, including: risks of delinquency and foreclosure, and risks of loss in the event thereof; the dependence upon the successful operation of, and net income from, real property; risks generally incident to interests in real property; and risks specific to the type and use of a particular property. Investments in real estate-related debt may also include subordinated loans. In the event a borrower defaults on a loan and lacks sufficient assets to satisfy such loan, the lender may lose all or a significant part of their investment, which would result in losses. In the event a borrower becomes subject to bankruptcy proceedings, the lender generally will not have any recourse to the assets of the borrower that are not pledged to secure the loan, if any, and the unpledged assets of the borrower may not be sufficient to satisfy their loan. If a borrower defaults on a loan or on its senior debt, or in the event of a borrower bankruptcy, the loan will be satisfied only after all senior debt is paid in full. Where senior debt exists, the presence of inter-creditor arrangements may limit the subordinated lender's ability to amend the loan documents, assign the loan, accept prepayments, exercise remedies and control decisions made in bankruptcy proceedings relating to borrowers.

Hard Assets: The production and marketing of hard assets may be affected by actions and changes in governments. In addition, the hard asset securities that SCM invests in may be cyclical in nature. During periods of economic or financial instability, hard asset securities may be subject to broad price fluctuations, reflecting volatility of energy and basic materials prices and possible instability of supply of various hard assets. In addition, hard asset companies may also be subject to the risks generally associated with extraction of natural resources, such as the risks of mining and oil drilling, and the risks of the hazards associated with natural resources, such as fire, drought, increased regulatory and environmental costs, and others. Hard asset securities may also experience greater price fluctuations than the relevant hard asset. In periods of rising hard asset prices, such securities may rise at a faster rate, and conversely, in time of falling hard asset prices, such securities may suffer a greater price decline.

Non-U.S. Securities: Investing in securities of non-U.S. governments and non-U.S. companies that are generally denominated in non-U.S. currencies and utilization of options on non-U.S. securities involves certain considerations comprising both risks and opportunities not typically associated with investing in securities of the United States government or United States companies. These considerations include changes in exchange rates and exchange control regulations, political and social instability, expropriation, imposition of foreign taxes, less liquid markets and less available information than is generally the case in the United States, higher transaction costs, foreign government restrictions, less government supervision of exchanges, brokers and issuers, greater risks associated with counterparties and settlement, difficulty in enforcing contractual obligations, lack of uniform accounting and auditing standards and greater price volatility.

IX. Disciplinary Information

SCM does not have any legal, financial or other “disciplinary” items to report.

X. Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

Material Relationships – General Statement

From time to time, Sterneck Capital Management clients express the need for certain professional services, and SCM is able to refer clients to trusted accountants, lawyers, estate planners, and insurance agents, etc. Occasionally these professionals will refer clients to Sterneck Capital. There is no formal arrangement, nor is there any form of remuneration for such referrals, thus there is no material conflict of interest.

Broker Dealers, Bond Dealers

Sterneck Capital works with equity sales brokers, bond dealers and prime broker dealers to execute security transactions and to custody client assets. The cost of these services is paid for by the client, based on the transaction costs. (See section V for more detail). In return, Sterneck Capital may receive research and use of technology systems and tools.

Pooled Investment Vehicles

Sterneck Capital routinely invests client assets in publicly traded mutual funds and closed-ended mutual funds, master limited partnerships, exchange traded funds, etc. These investments have their own underlying expense (see section V more detail). There is no material conflict of interest.

Futures Commission Merchant, Commodity Pool Operator, Commodity Trading Advisor

From time to time Sterneck Capital Management may invest client assets in investment vehicles that may have exposure in the futures markets and commodity derivatives. These investments are not customary practice and typically are reserved for clients who have a sophisticated understanding of risk.

Sponsor or syndicator of Limited Partnerships

Sterneck Capital will evaluate non-public investment opportunities in pursuit of diversifying unique risk premium alternatives. Such opportunities will have fee structures clearly defined for all potential investors, both the fees to the Manager of the non-public investment, and any management fee to be charged by Sterneck Capital Management. There is no material conflict.

Investing in Same Securities

Sterneck Capital and Sterneck Capital personnel do invest in the same securities that it recommends to clients. To address potential conflicts and to ensure fair treatment of all clients, Sterneck Capital's Code of Ethics applies the following restrictions:

- Intraday trades (buys and sells) impacting multiple accounts must be performed in the average-price account, ensuring all clients and SCM personnel receive the same price.
- Firm personnel may not purchase nor sell a security within the seven (7) calendar days immediately on, before or after, including the same calendar day (thirteen days total), on which a security is purchased in a client account. Same day trades are allowable but when performed alongside clients, the trades must be executed in the average-price account. This black-out period applies only when transaction volume exceeds 5% of the market's average daily volume for the position. (See Code of Ethics for more detail).
- No participation in Initial Public Offerings in personal accounts.
- All limit or private offerings must receive pre-clearance from Sterneck Capital's Chief Compliance Officer.
- The firm maintains a list of restricted securities, which are prohibited from being purchased or sold in personnel accounts.
- Prohibition from participating in investment clubs.

Exceptions exist, and SCM personnel can also receive an exception through pre-clearance from the Chief Compliance Officer if the basis for the exception is deemed fair and reasonable. Sterneck Capital will make its Code of Ethics available upon request.

XII. Brokerage Practices

Broker-Dealer Selection Practices

1. Sterneck Capital utilizes the Prime Brokerage system for those managed accounts which are Prime Brokerage eligible. Though not a customary practice, through this channel, both Prime Broker and Executing Brokers provide SCM with proprietary and third-party research, systems and tools. SCM does not pay for these service; as a result, SCM may have an incentive to use a particular broker/dealer because of the benefit of the research or services, regardless of whether the broker/dealer offers most favorable execution to our clients.

The Prime Broker typically recommended by SCM charges a competitive transaction expense for execution. This transaction expense, paid for by the client, is comparable to rates charged by others in the industry.

Using an Executing Broker, within the Prime Brokerage rubric, allows each account to pay directly an Executing Broker on a pro rata basis for the value of the research in which SCM participates for the client's benefit. This incremental cost may not result in the client receiving the best execution price.

SCM receives no form of financial compensation other than the management fee outlined in each client's management agreement. SCM has no vested interest in any of these other fees, other than taking advantage of research and supply for the benefit of client portfolios. All broker-dealers selected by SCM to act as either Prime Broker or Executing Broker for its clients' accounts are unaffiliated third parties.

In certain circumstances, the research or service benefits all clients but is paid for by a subset of clients. This can result when there is limited supply/demand being offered through an off-market transaction, and subsequent buys/sells are filled in the public market. This scenario is possible, but not typical. The benefit to those participating in an off-market transaction is a known execution price, one not influenced by the normal supply/demand dynamics, thus less execution risk.

Types of products and services acquired with client brokerage commissions include equity research, trade publications, books, equity screening tools, access to new issues, hot issues and IPOs, consulting advice, access to supplies of bonds and bond analysis, and off-market supply/demand.

Sterneck Capital is contacted by executing brokers with research, analysis and/or securities to transact (bids). Most of the information is reviewed and quickly discarded. When the information is deemed useful by the SCM Investment Committee, SCM begins to determine which accounts should receive an allocation based on the investment mandate, and weighing the need for such exposure. With an allocation being determined and a total transaction quantity communicated to the research-presenting broker, the trade is transacted and the Prime Broker is instructed as to which accounts to allocate the shares.

2. Brokerage for Client Referrals

- a) SCM participates in the institutional advisor program (the "Program") offered by TD Ameritrade Institutional. TD Ameritrade Institutional is a division of TD Ameritrade Inc.,

member FINRA/SIPC (“TD Ameritrade “), an unaffiliated SEC-registered broker-dealer and FINRA member. TD Ameritrade offers to independent investment advisors services which include custody of securities, trade execution, clearance and settlement of transactions. SCM receives some benefits from TD Ameritrade through its participation in the Program. (See the disclosure under Item XIV below.)

- b) The only broker-dealer client referrals received by Sterneck Capital are from TD Ameritrade. In all cases, accounts for new clients were opened at TD Ameritrade. Through the Prime Brokerage system client transactions may be performed away from TD Ameritrade, however these executing brokers have not referred clients to Sterneck Capital.

3. Directed Brokerage

- a) Not applicable – Sterneck Capital does not recommend or require that a client direct the use of a specific broker dealer.
- b) Generally, SCM does not permit a client to direct brokerage. There are unique and specific arrangements in which a particular brokerage firm is utilized for their capability to accommodate a specific investment mandate. In these unique cases, the fee charged by the brokerage firm is commensurate with the expertise and capability being delivered.

Aggregate Purchase and Sales

When the opportunity allows, Sterneck Capital aggregates purchase and sales transactions which consolidates trading with a primary custodian ensuring all clients receive the price benefits associated with high volume.

Trade Errors

We have implemented procedures designed to prevent trade errors; however, trade errors in client accounts cannot always be avoided. Consistent with our fiduciary duty, it is our policy to correct trade errors in a manner that is in the best interest of the client. Depending on the specific circumstances of the trade error, the client may not be able to receive any gains generated as a result of the error correction. In all situations where the client does not cause the trade error, the client will be made whole and we will absorb any loss resulting from the trade error if the error was caused by the firm. If the error is caused by the Custodian, the Custodian will be responsible for covering all trade error costs. In cases where the client causes the trade error, the client will be responsible for any loss resulting from the correction. If an investment gain results from the correcting trade, the gain will be donated to charity. We will never benefit or profit from trade errors.

XIII. Review of Accounts

Frequency and Nature

Accounts are reviewed no less than weekly. The Chief Investment Officer and Sr. Portfolio Managers conduct most reviews, ensuring account allocation is in line with each clients' investment mandate. Such factors as investment objectives, tax consequences, industry concentrations, future prospects of each issue and percentage invested are considered. The use of technology facilitates a more accurate and more efficient means for conducting frequent reviews.

Non-Periodic Reviews

Reviews frequently are performed on a non-periodic basis. Events that may trigger such reviews:

- Preparation for a client meeting
- Macro-economic, political or environmental developments that prompt the SCM Investment Committee to change underlying assumptions about particular asset classes
- Strategic security selection which requires a broad adjustment within a portfolio
- Contribution of additional cash or securities into an account.

Frequency of Reporting

Monthly - Managed account clients receive a monthly brokerage statement, as well as individual confirmations whenever a trade is executed. These are provided by a qualified, third party custodian.

Quarterly - Individually managed accounts receive billing statements including a written offer to furnish SCM's Form ADV Part II. Form ADV Part II is also publicly available on SCM's website at www.sterneckcapital.com.

Annually – Taxable managed account clients receive an annual Form 1099 from their qualified, third party custodian. All clients receive annual performance reports. Additionally, upon request SCM can furnish taxable accounts with realized gains and loss statements, income reports, and expense reports. Such reports are considered supplemental.

XIV. Client Referrals and Other Compensation

Economic Benefits to SCM

As disclosed under Item XII above, SCM participates in TD Ameritrade's institutional customer program and may recommend TD Ameritrade to clients for custody and brokerage services. There is no direct link between SCM's participation in the program and the investment advice it gives to its clients, although SCM receives economic benefits through its participation in the program that are typically not available to TD Ameritrade retail investors. These benefits include the following products and services (provided without cost or at a discount): receipt of duplicate client statements and confirmations; research related products and tools; consulting services; access to a trading desk serving SCM participants; access to block trading (which provides the ability to aggregate securities transactions for execution and then allocate the appropriate shares to client accounts); the ability to have advisory fees deducted directly from client accounts; access to an electronic communications network for client order entry and account information; access to mutual funds with no transaction fees and to certain institutional money managers; and discounts on compliance, marketing, research, technology, and practice management products or services provided to SCM by third party vendors. TD Ameritrade may also have paid for business consulting and professional services received by SCM's related persons. Some of the products and services made available by TD Ameritrade through the program may benefit SCM but may not benefit its client accounts. These products or services may assist SCM in managing and administering client accounts, including accounts not maintained at TD Ameritrade. Other services made available by TD Ameritrade are intended to help SCM manage and further develop its business enterprise. The benefits received by SCM or its personnel through participation in the program do not depend on the amount of brokerage transactions directed to TD Ameritrade. As part of its fiduciary duties to clients, SCM endeavors at all times to put the interests of its clients first. Clients should be aware, however, that the receipt of economic benefits by SCM or its related persons in and of itself creates a potential conflict of interest and may indirectly influence SCM's choice of TD Ameritrade for custody and brokerage services.

SCM receives travel, hotel and meal accommodations to attend educational, due diligence, and consulting meetings and events hosted by other investment companies and service providers. Events attended by SCM are to further the knowledge base and decision making and product availability that forms the service offering delivered to SCM clients. The benefits received by SCM do not depend on the amount of purchases or transactions directed to host companies, and under no circumstance is SCM obligated to make future purchases or transactions. However, clients should be aware by receiving such economic benefits, SCM creates a potential conflict of interest which may indirectly influence SMC's decisions.

Compensation from SCM

SCM is willing to enter into written solicitor agreements with other investment advisors and or financial planning firms appropriately registered with either the US SEC or the State(s) in which they operate. Pursuant to such an agreement, SCM will remunerate the solicitor for directing clients to the investment manager. As a matter of policy, any client acquired by the investment manager through such an arrangement will pay the same fees as the investment manager's other clients of comparable size receiving similar services and no additional charges or costs will be incurred by any client by virtue of their having been introduced by a third party.

TD AdvisorDirect Program

SCM may receive client referrals from TD Ameritrade through its participation in TD Ameritrade AdvisorDirect. TD Ameritrade is a discount broker-dealer independent of and unaffiliated with SCM and there is no employee or agency relationship between them. TD Ameritrade has established AdvisorDirect as a means of referring its brokerage customers and other investors seeking fee-based personal investment management services or financial planning services to independent investment advisors. TD Ameritrade does not supervise SCM and has no responsibility for SCM's management of client portfolios or SCM's other advice or services. SCM pays TD Ameritrade an on-going fee for each successful client referral. This fee is usually a percentage (not to exceed 25%) of the advisory fee that the client pays to SCM ("Solicitation Fee"). SCM will also pay TD Ameritrade the Solicitation Fee on any advisory fees received by SCM from any of a referred client's family members, including a spouse, child or any other immediate family member who resides with the referred client and hired SCM on the recommendation of such referred client. SCM will not charge clients referred through AdvisorDirect any fees or costs higher than its standard fee schedule offered to its clients or otherwise pass Solicitation Fees paid to TD Ameritrade to its clients. For information regarding additional or other fees paid directly or indirectly to TD Ameritrade, please refer to the TD Ameritrade AdvisorDirect Disclosure and Acknowledgement Form.

SCM's participation in AdvisorDirect raises potential conflicts of interest. TD Ameritrade will most likely refer clients through AdvisorDirect to investment advisors that encourage their clients to custody their assets at TD Ameritrade and whose client accounts are profitable to TD Ameritrade. Consequently, to obtain client referrals from TD Ameritrade, SCM may have an incentive to recommend to clients that the assets under management by SCM be held in custody with TD Ameritrade and to place transactions for client accounts with TD Ameritrade. In addition, SCM has agreed not to solicit clients referred to it through AdvisorDirect to transfer their accounts from TD Ameritrade or to establish brokerage or custody accounts at other custodians, except when its fiduciary duties require doing so. SCM's participation in AdvisorDirect does not diminish its duty to seek best execution of trades for client accounts.

XV. Custody

Custody, as it applies to investment advisors, has been defined by regulators as having access or control over client funds and/or securities. In other words, custody is not limited to physically holding client funds and securities. If an investment advisor has the ability to access or control client funds or securities, the investment advisor is deemed to have custody and must ensure proper procedures are implemented.

SCM is deemed to have custody of client funds and securities whenever SCM is given the authority to have fees deducted directly from client accounts. However, this is the only form of custody SCM will ever maintain. It should be noted that authorization to trade in client accounts is not deemed by regulators to be custody.

For accounts in which SCM is deemed to have custody, the firm has established procedures to ensure all client funds and securities are held at a qualified custodian in a separate account for each client under that client's name. Clients or an independent representative of the client will direct, in writing, the establishment of all accounts and therefore are aware of the qualified custodian's name, address and the manner in which the funds or securities are maintained. Finally, account statements are delivered directly from the qualified custodian to each client, or the client's independent representative, at least quarterly. Clients should carefully review those statements and are urged to compare the statements against reports received from SCM. When clients have questions about their account statements, they should contact SCM or the qualified custodian preparing the statement.

When fees are deducted from an account, SCM is responsible for calculating the fee and delivering instructions to the custodian. At the same time SCM instructs the custodian to deduct fees from the client's account; SCM will send the client an invoice itemizing the fee. Itemization shall include the formula used to calculate the fee, the amount of assets under management the fee is based on, and the time period covered by the fee. Further, these fees will be disclosed on your quarterly statements.

Our firm is also deemed to have custody of clients' funds or securities when clients have standing authorizations with their custodian to move money from a client's account to a third-party ("SLOA") and under that SLOAs authorize us to designate the amount or timing of transfers with the custodian. The SEC has set forth a set of standards intended to protect client assets in such situations, which we follow. We do not have a beneficial interest on any of the accounts we are deemed to have Custody where SLOAs are on file. In addition, account statements reflecting all activity on the account(s), are delivered directly from the qualified custodian to each client or the client's independent representative, at least quarterly. When you have questions about your account statements, you should contact us, or the qualified custodian preparing the statement.

XVI. Investment Discretion

Sterneck Capital manages accounts on a discretionary basis. This means SCM has the authority, as set forth in the Management Agreement signed by each client, and/or the Limited Power of Attorney required by the Custodian, to make buy and sell decisions for the client's investment account without first getting client approval for each transaction.

Any investment discretion SCM exercises is subject to the provisions of the client's account documents, and in the Investment Policy Statement. The Investment Policy Statement addresses specific trade restrictions and preferences disclosed by the client, as well as investment objectives and agreed upon asset allocation.

XVII. Voting Client Securities

Sterneck Capital does not have the authority to vote proxy statements on behalf of individually managed client accounts. Proxy statements should be sent by the issuer directly to each account owner.

XVIII. Financial Information

Sterneck Capital does not require or solicit prepayment of management fees, has never declared bankruptcy, and in no way does its financial condition reasonably impair its ability to meet its contractual commitments to clients.
